On August 3, 2024, a crucial AAA (Asha, Anganwadi, and ANM) meeting was convened at the Adalpura Anganwadi center in Shikhar block. The gathering brought together 25 frontline health workers to focus on strategies for early identification and intervention of critical child health issues.

A cornerstone of this initiative is the monthly submission of newborn lists by Asha workers to the G.A.N.E.S.H. team. For infants exhibiting specific red flags such as low birth weight, birth asphyxia, birth defects, underweight, or developmental delays, detailed video documentation is created.

Media Coverage

The Education Challenge in India

India faces a significant challenge in education, despite having the world's largest child population of approximately 400 million. While primary school enrollment is high, a steep decline occurs at the secondary level, with only 40% of adolescents continuing their education. This issue is primarily attributed to the quality of teaching and learning experiences.

To address this, effective teacher training is crucial. By empowering teachers to create engaging and meaningful learning environments, we can improve student retention and overall educational outcomes.
